

Bendigo and Adelaide Bank had its origins on the Bendigo goldfields in 1858, before forming the Bendigo Land and Building Society primarily financing miners' cottages. Its purpose being to act as a key enabler for local community building and strengthening.

The Bendigo Land and Building Society converted to a bank on 1 July 1995, under the name "Bendigo Bank Limited", at which time it was Australia's oldest and Victoria's largest building society.

In 2007 Bendigo Bank Limited merged with Adelaide Bank Limited and changed its name to "Bendigo and Adelaide Bank Limited".

In 1998 Bendigo and Adelaide Bank established its unique Community Bank branch model under which Bendigo and Adelaide Bank and a specially established local community company operate a branch together.

Social Issue Rural community banking

Business Opportunity To partner with communities to operate community banks which leverage Bendigo and Adelaide Bank's expertise and reinvest a portion of their revenue into the communities in which they operate.

Social Value Creation

- 320 community-led branches across Australia
- Over 1,590 branch staff employed
- Reinvested more than $29 million in Australian communities across 2018-2019

Business Value Creation

- Community Bank branches generated over $39.2 billion in total business at the end of FY19
- Posted average growth rates of 6.7 percent since FY15.

The Opportunity

In 1998, in response to thousands of branch closings in rural areas and small suburban communities by banks across Australia, Bendigo and Adelaide Bank partnered with local communities to create a new “shared value” model—the Community Bank.

The Community Bank model gives communities the opportunity to start a community owned company that will operate a branch in partnership with Bendigo and Adelaide Bank. Shareholders of the community company are required to have a “close connection” with the serviced community, and broad-based ownership is encouraged limiting individual interest to no more than 10%.

Through this model, Bendigo and Adelaide Bank supports self-selecting communities to run their own branches as franchisees, leveraging the bank’s infrastructure and expertise. The branches not only provide community members with financial services, but they also reinvest a portion of their revenue into communities to drive long-term growth.

To select locations for Community Bank branches, Bendigo and Adelaide Bank applies a unique set of investment criteria, assessing sustainability and growth potential by looking at community initiative, self-organization, community interest in collective advancement, and community preparedness to support a local branch with their own money and business.

The bank’s unique Community Bank model is, in its own words, “Good for business, Good for community”. A leading example of CSV in practice.

The Strategy

The Community Bank model developed by Bendigo and Adelaide Bank is an alternative approach for providing financial services to rural and smaller metropolitan communities – but why was it established? And how does it work?

The Community Bank model provides communities with the opportunity to set up a community owned company that will conduct a Bendigo and Adelaide Bank retail branch operation.

The aims of the Community Bank model are threefold.

- First, to secure branch banking services for participating communities.
- Secondly, to help these communities better manage locally generated capital and share in the potential growth of their local economy.
- Thirdly, to enable participating communities to share in revenue generated from their Community Bank enterprise, as well as offering the potential for shareholders to receive dividends.

Each branch operates as a franchise of Bendigo and Adelaide Bank, using the name “Bendigo Bank” and the system of operations of Bendigo and Adelaide Bank.

By supporting their local branch, communities have the opportunity to generate revenue which may be able to be returned to support and develop the community through community projects, and provide returns to shareholders through dividends - promoting long-term growth.

Locations for Community Bank branches are assessed using a unique set of investment criteria, considering sustainability and growth potential by looking at community initiative, self-organisation, community interest in collective advancement, and community preparedness to support a local branch with their own money and business.

The model has been highly successful for Bendigo and the franchise model is easily replicated and scaled. Today, the bank has over 860,000 customers in over 320 community-led branches across Australia (20 percent of which are in areas without any other form of banking).

‘Shared Value has enabled the bank to very quickly communicate what the Community Bank model is, and to provide a context to the approach that the bank takes to its business more generally.’

Results

Social outcomes:

- Over 860,000 customers in more than 320 community-led branches across Australia (20 percent of which are in areas without any other form of banking).
- Over 1,590 branch staff employed with over 1,950 volunteer Directors of local community companies
- Reinvested $229 million in Australian communities since 1998, including more than $24 million in 18/19 which through leveraged funding more than doubled, bringing the total value of community projects to almost $58 million
- Almost $58 million has been paid in dividends to more than 75,000 local shareholders.

Business outcomes:

- Community Bank branches generated over $39.2 billion in total business at the end of FY19
- Posted average growth rates of 6.7 percent since FY15.

Lessons Learned, Challenges and Outlook

The essence of the Community Bank concept is in sharing the responsibilities and rewards between the community and the bank. Communities across Australia have accepted the responsibility of providing start-up capital and making their branches successful - and are increasingly reaping rewards that aren't just limited to banking.

In the early days, most attention was focused on how the Community Bank concept has secured face-to-face banking services for local communities. Of course this is important, but it ignores the tremendous social and economic contributions being made by Community Bank branches as more capital is retained locally, more commercial activity is stimulated and the confidence of local community leaders increases.